

Stepping Stones

Words and music by Matthew Browder

v.1

The devil has played havoc; beat my heart like a drum
It always strokes his ego when I feel like giving up
But I'll proceed with power, defeat won't be my fate
I will not fall victim to the games old Satan plays

Chorus

I choose to use these stumbling blocks as stepping stones
I refuse to be the laughingstock; I've been knocked down, but not for long
The devil meant to set me up for my greatest fall
I choose to use these stumbling blocks as stepping stones

v.2

Just minding my own business, he tried to wreck my day
Studied and knew my weakness, laid a hindrance in my way
But the obstacles don't determine what the outcome's going to be
The victory is learning to get back on your feet

Chorus 2x

Tag—I'm moving to higher ground, gaining by leaps and bounds
I choose to use these stumbling blocks for stepping stones
